With only 100 attacks in the world each year, sharks are not particularly dangerous to humans. We are generally not attractive to sharks as food, and sharks only bite for two reasons: either they mistake us for something else, or the shark is keen to find out what's in the water. The new wetsuit will hide the wearer in the water, or make him or her appear dangerous. Research suggests that sharks look at things just before they bite them. The new wetsuit should leave the animal unsure as to what's actually inside it.
